About Dwight

Dwight Hansen is an Senior Consulting Partner for Partners In Leadership with an outstanding background of institutionalizing behavior change with individuals, teams, and organizations. He is a results-oriented, pragmatic, and refreshingly straightforward senior consultant with a unique ability of helping leaders access and address hard-to-get-at performance issues commonly rooted in their organization's culture. Dwight demystifies the traditional view of culture, and is highly skilled with helping leaders at all levels tap into their people differently—in ways that can produce extraordinary results.

Dwight's industry experience includes banking, healthcare, petroleum, pharmaceutical, software, telecom, accounting, energy, retail, technology, automotive, hospitality, food & beverage, manufacturing, and city, county, and state government organizations, among others.

Prior to Partners In Leadership Dwight was a VP for an investor education firm where he managed start-up sales logistics with new brokerage accounts, created and executed growth strategies, and managed 130 employees.

More recently, Dwight was a Practice Leader where he supported his previous organization's domestic and international partners. He has extensive experience with designing and delivering engagements for the purpose of transforming teams, departments, divisions and entire organizations. His roll-up-your-sleeves approach resonates with audiences at all levels—from senior executives to the front lines. He is also regarded as an experienced keynote speaker, having spoken at conferences and forums for global engineering firms, healthcare organizations, and financial organizations, among others.

Dwight received his bachelor's degree in business/corporate communications from Brigham Young University.
